

THE SOLUTION

The Solution was a project we planned in our 2nd year with many different agendas. Firstly, we wanted to complete our first project as a group and wanted to build a business model. We also had the agenda to train our juniors in web development through this project, so they could get the proper guidance that we were unable to get. This project was supposed to provide the notes written by the students for the students. We successfully completed this project using Laravel, and even successfully deployed the project as a website. But then we were hindered by a problem and that was that we didn't get any positive response from anyone in our college, neither from our seniors nor from the juniors for whom the website was dedicated to. Hence, the project had to be closed and that business model collapsed with our very first failure.
